

PUBLISHING AGREEMENT

This Agreement is made between eXchanges, a journal of translation and commentary published by the University of Iowa (“Journal”) and [Name of translator] (“Translator”) for the publication of [Title of translated work] (“Work”).

1. Translator’s Grant

Translator grants to Journal the exclusive right to print, publish, distribute, and sell the Work, during the term or terms of copyright and all renewals and extensions of copyright, in any form, including printed, digital, or electronically on the world-wide web. All rights not expressly granted to Journal are reserved exclusively by Translator, including the right, following initial publication of the Work by Journal, to publish the Work in a collection of Translator’s works or to otherwise publish the Work, with credit to Journal in any such publication, and the rights to copy and distribute the Work for any personal, academic, or pedagogical purpose. All right, title, and interest in the Work, including copyright, will remain with Translator.

2. Translator’s Warranty

Translator warrants that s/he is the sole owner of copyright to the Work and has full authority to make this Agreement. Translator further warrants that the Work does not infringe the copyright or other proprietary right of any other person.

3. Journal’s Agreement to Publish

Upon presentation of an acceptable manuscript, Journal agrees to publish the Work within a reasonable period in such form as it deems suitable.

4. Other Provisions

This Agreement constitutes the entire Agreement between Translator and Journal; will be effective as of the last date entered below; and will be construed and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of Iowa.
